

Write your against argument (why the other opinion is wrong) about the statement below, using evidence from the text (where possible) to support your reasons.

Writing requirements:

- Written as a paragraph
- Use as many reason as you can (without going overboard)
- Use fronted adverbials (firstly, secondly, etc)
- Use a range of sentence types
- Use emotive and persuasive language
- Use a range of punctuation
- Check your spelling, punctuation and grammar

 The key part of this is that you ARE NOT restating your reasons for yesterday, you are giving reasons why the other opinion is wrong.

1. If you said yesterday that Alfie should go to work instead of school... Today you will start..
 - People might say that Alfie shouldn't go to work instead of school, however... (you will talk about the bad aspects of school)
2. If you said yesterday that Alfie shouldn't go to work instead of school... Today you will start..
 - People might say that Alfie should go to work instead of school, however... (you will talk about the bad aspects of work)
