What Is an Argumentative Essay?

(The technical part)

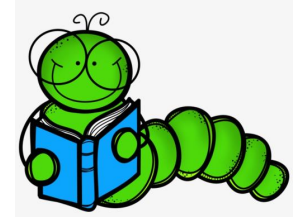

The core of an argumentative essay and the core of an everyday argument are more or less the same; there is a difference of opinion about a subject, and the two (or more) sides try to convince the other they are right.

In an argumentative essay, the writer presents both their own position on a topic and the opposing position, with the goal of building an argument that supports their position and beats the opposition. This is done by using evidence.

For example, if you're writing an argumentative essay about whaling and your opinion is that it should be stopped, you can't just say that whalers should stop it because it's not a nice thing to do. You need to explain why whaling is bad and disprove the argument a pro-whaling supporter might make about why whaling is important and should be resumed.

We are talking about the other side today!

Today, we are giving our opinion on why the other side is wrong.

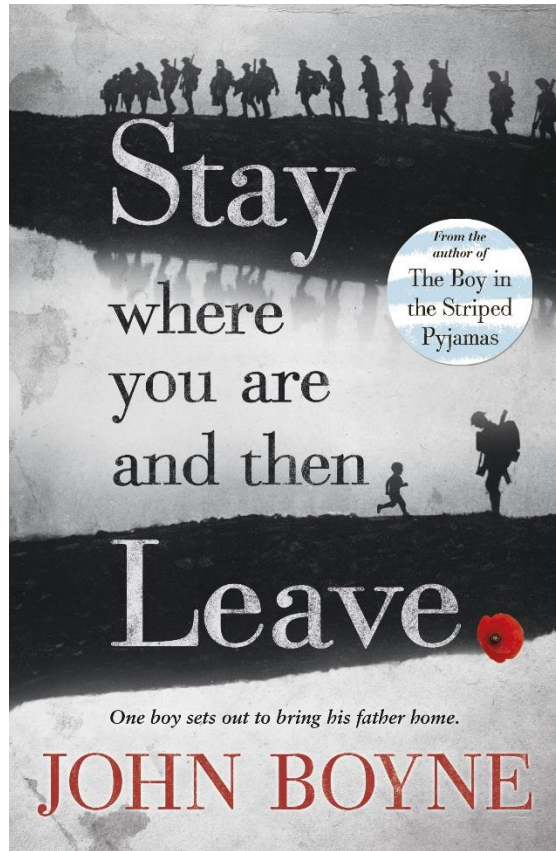

Let's practice...

People might say that chocolate is the best sweet, however...

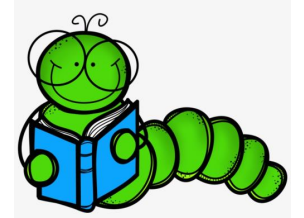

People might think that football is the worst game, however...

People might believe that war is a necessary thing, however...

People might think that school returning next week is scary thing, however...

What you need to do today:

You state the other opinion and you give reasons to support why their opinion is wrong, using evidence.

For example:

Mrs Milchin might say that Mr Janacek and Kalena deserved to be taken away but she is wrong. She is only upset because her sons were killed at war and she wants to blame someone. Mr Janacek and Kalena are not spies and they are not from Germany. Mrs Milchin, and anyone else who agrees with her, are wrong and misguided.

Using the key ideas we have just discussed, you are now going to complete the independent task in assignments, labelled 4 March English.

For this task, you will be finishing your argument essay. There are no chilli tasks today, you will all be using the same task sheet.

You will be placed into breakout rooms so that you can work with an adult. Please complete your work in your breakout rooms and submit your answers by the end of the lesson. Please ask your adult if you have any questions.
